Media 'fairness' argued

by Elizabeth Kimes
staff reporter

One of the participants in Tuesday night's panel discussion on the role of the media in the 1988 presidential campaign contended that the media has been all too fair during the process.

"We have become so polite it is astonishing," said Dale Van Atta, a syndicated columnist who has garnered six Pulitzer Prize nominations.

Joining Van Atta in the forum were Kathryn Bushkin, director of Editorial Administration for US News and World Report, and Ike Pappas, former senior correspondent for CBS News.

Van Atta said the media has been more critical of political figures in the past. During the administration of Thomas Jefferson, the president was referred to as a liar, a traitor and a womanizer.

"The press practically ruined the president," Van Atta said. "Yet years later, he wrote that if he were given the choice between newspapers without a government, or government without newspapers, he would choose newspapers without government."

An example of how the media has been too fair to a candidate is the case of George Bush's involvement in the Iran-contra affair, said Van Atta, who uncovered the story of the administration selling arms to Iran.

"This is a guy who wants to be elected without us knowing who he is," Van Atta said. "The one thing that is confidential (about the Iran-contra affair) is the conversations between Ronald Reagan and George Bush. Yet everybody else has been hung out to dry."

Van Atta said the criticism of the media during the Iran-contra affair points to how political figures have taken to attacking the media because it proves to be effective to their cause.

Kathryn Bushkin, former press secretary to Gary Hart and Dale Van Atta, a syndicated columnist with Jack Anderson, entertain questions from the audience on recent events the media has played a large role in. These two spoke as part of a panel discussion on Media's effect on Campaign '88 sponsored by Pi Sigma Alpha.

Faculty trims ceremony for speed, dignity

by Beth Thomas
managing editor

In an effort to shorten this spring's commencement ceremony, graduates will receive their diploma covers as they enter the stadium instead of receiving them in the middle of the ceremony, as has been done in the past.

The deans of the colleges Burlingame will be at the entrances to pass out the covers. Previously, the deans came onto the field and distributed them during the ceremony.

The change in the ceremony is the result of recommendations made by a Faculty Senate ad hoc committee formed to create a more dignified atmosphere than has existed at past commencements.

Dwight Burlingame, vice president of University relations, said passing out the diploma covers during the ceremony was a problem because it caused "mass hysteria on the field as parents came out of the stands to take pictures."

Last year the crowd on the field was so large that some students were not able to receive their cover, he said.

Burlingame said he does not think students will disapprove of the change in the way they receive their covers.

"What difference does it make to them? It's a diploma cover," he said. "They will still have an opportunity for a photo."

Students will be graduated by their colleges during the ceremony, which will provide them an "opportunity to cheer," he added.

"With over 2,000 students graduating, it creates a logistical problem," Burlingame said. "Many schools do it this way."

He said all graduating students have been notified of the importance of not defacing their gowns, as students have done in the past, and he does not anticipate any problems.

"If someone comes in and he (has decorations on his cap and gown), we probably will say that's not appropriate dress," he said.

A letter sent to graduating students by the Office of Registration and Records this week said that alterations to caps and gowns will be cause for not participating in the ceremony.

Deanna Radeloff, chair of the commencement committee and of the Home Economics department, said the current problem with commencement is that it is too long and it loses formality when people get tired. She said parents who arrive early can spend almost four hours in the stadium.

The committee, comprised of faculty members, administrative staff members, classified staff members and five students, did not have enough time to make many recommendations for changes in this commencement. However, it decided the main way to make the ceremony more dignified is to shorten it, she said.

She also said students tend to be disruptive because the ceremony is impersonal. Students do not receive their actual diploma, only the covers, and are not personally recognized at the ceremony, Radeloff said.

"It's a very difficult problem (to make it more personal). We need to identify 2,000 people and still keep the ceremony short," Radeloff said.

Greeks to get more 'sisters'

by Pamela Monastra
staff reporter

Alpha Omicron Pi was selected by Panhellenic Council as the new sorority to colonize at the University next fall, completing a seven-month process.

The final decision was made last week by a vote from each individual sorority chapter on the Panhellenic Council. Sigma Kappa was the other sorority hoping to colonize at the University.

Melissa Puckett, president of Panhel, said the original plan of the expansion committee was to present its recommendation for the new chapter, but it didn't work out that way.

"From analyzing both chapters, the expansion committee realized that they were torn between the two," Puckett said. "Either chapter would be extremely beneficial to our Greek system," she said.

In order to arrive at a decision the expansion committee provided a presentation of all priority areas regarding each group to the Panhellenic Council.

Lori Allen, assistant director of Greek Life, said the presentation enabled the council to make the final decision based on the information presented by the expansion committee chairperson, Jane D'Isa.

"After the presentation there was a discussion on the two chapters to clarify any questions or concerns," Allen said. "Following the discussion a vote was rendered, one from each chapter, in favor of Alpha Omicron Pi (A-O-Pi)."

Although the process is completed, Allen said A-O-Pi will not be colonizing until next fall, after Panhel's formal rush, but they will be represented in the rush booklet distributed to the rushees.

"Stages of rush have not been determined, but A-O-Pi has agreed to work in complete cooperation with our Panhellenic system," Allen said.

Peg Crawford, international president of A-O-Pi said that part of their system is similar to that of our Greek system's program.

"Tentatively we plan on having an information party for the first stage of parties, personal interviews with each individual rushee for the second stage, and then a preference party for the final stage," Crawford said.

'Mania' quiet, police say

by John Meola
city reporter

A party billed by its organizers as "East Merry Mania" wasn't as mad as originally expected, according to city and campus police officials.

"I think it went pretty good this year," said City Police Chief Galen Ash of last Friday's party. "The (University) students were very responsible."

Ash said the University students inverted their drinking cups to show passing officers they did not have beer.

Police tried to contain the party to East Merry Street, and cited those who crossed the railway tracks or Thurston with alcohol.

Both Ash and Campus Police Lieutenant David Weekley blamed the unusually cool weather Friday night for the low turnout as compared to years past.

City police became concerned, though, when two chartered buses of University of Toledo students were seen by campus police, Ash said.

"There's a potential for trouble with outsiders," Ash said. "They don't have the ties to the community that the University students have and they can create havoc and just leave."

Ash and Weekley both agreed that most problems arose from outsiders, who came from as far away as the University of Akron.

"We (campus police) dealt more with visitors than students," Weekley said. "The visitors were responsible for more of the public urination and open container offenses."

Ash said the police did not break up the party because it took place on private property and there were no complaints.

He hopes for the same results next year, though he said he really does not want another party to occur.

"I am sure not going to encourage it," Ash said. "I really would not like to see it happen next year, but if they do have it we will work around it just like we did this year."

Dukakis leads Pa. primary

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Michael Dukakis led Jesse Jackson in a peaceful Pennsylvania primary that was sure to pad his lead in convention delegates and certify his status as Democratic presidential front-runner. George Bush sought the final delegates needed to clinch the Republican nomination.

As the polls closed across the state yesterday, CBS reported on the basis of interviews with voters that the Massachusetts governor would carry Pennsylvania by a margin of roughly 2-1 over Jackson.

The first precincts reporting gave Dukakis 279 votes to 42 for Jackson. Among Republicans, Bush had 178 votes and former opponent Sen. Bob Dole had 14.

Dukakis led Jackson by far in the pre-election polls after a week-long campaign that looked and sounded more like a mutual admiration society than the typical 1988 Democratic primary brawl.

Aides hoped the Massachusetts governor would claim as many as 150 of the 178 Democratic National Convention delegates at stake.

Bush trumpeted his certain victory as he campaigned across Ohio and trained his guns on Dukakis. He said the Democratic front-runner lacks foreign policy experience and said, "That will be a major issue in the fall."

The vice president also arranged to meet Wednesday with President Reagan, and White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan "will see him first thing in the morning, and I am sure the president will offer his congratulations and discuss how he can help in the campaign."

Jackson had scant hopes for a victory in Pennsylvania, where his campaign failed to file a complete slate of delegate candidates. He already was looking ahead to next week's primaries in the District of Columbia, Indiana and Ohio.

Close nixing 'natal attraction'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Fatal Attraction" star Glenn Close gave birth Tuesday to a girl, her first child, and a spokeswoman for the actress said both were doing fine in an East Coast hospital.

The 7-pound, 12-ounce baby, which hadn't been named, was born at 10:58 a.m. EDT. The hospital wasn't identified because "she is desperate for privacy," publicist Catherine Olim said from her New York office.

"Mother and child are doing fine," Ms. Olim said, adding there were no problems. No details were disclosed.

Producer John Starke, 37, the baby's father, and Miss Close, 41, aren't married.

The actress is scheduled to start shooting the movie adaptation of the French novel "Les Liaisons Dangereuses" in June, Ms. Olim said.

Ohio team meets Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio Wesleyan University's championship basketball team met Tuesday with President Reagan at the White House, and one player later described the encounter as "the time of our lives."

"We walked into the office, and your heart just falls to the floor just to see the president," said Scott Tedder, of Whitehall, Ohio. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing."

Tedder helped lead Ohio Wesleyan, of Delaware, Ohio, to the NCAA Division III tournament championship last month. The Battling Bishops, who posted a 27-5 record for the season, defeated the University of Scranton 92-70 in the national championship final.

"Everybody thinks about Division I, but this is the greatest competition in the world — Division III," said Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, who arranged the Oval Office meeting. "Wesleyan really, really deserved the opportunity to get in there. And it was a fantastic thing for all of the smaller schools in the country."

Solve conflict of Beta, proficiency

Two traditions are in conflict. The biggest event of the freshman academic year — the English proficiency exam — and the main event on the Greek calendar — the Beta 500 — fall on the same day at the same time every spring semester.

The result, for freshmen, is distraction. To complete English 110, 111 and 112, about 3,500 students are required to take the six-hour afternoon exam, scheduled for the Saturday before the last weekend of the semester.

Those who hear the screaming crowds are disturbed by the noise and can become resentful that others are playing while they must concentrate on passing their class. Students taking the proficiency who are members of the University's 13 sororities and 17 fraternities, representing 2,578 students, feel left out because they cannot attend Beta to cheer on their teams.

The latter problem can be lessened, but not totally removed, by placing students in classrooms far from the "racetrack."

This effort has not been totally successful in the past, due to lack of adequate lecture hall space at the University. And this semester, the problem was aggravated by a young writers workshop, which took up additional classroom space.

Beta 500 has been held on the same weekend for the past 12 years. According to Wayne Colvin, director of Greek Life, rescheduling the event would be difficult because Greek activities are scheduled every weekend, resulting in a full calendar.

However, the only logical weekend to hold the exam is on its traditional date, after students have had the necessary 14 weeks to prepare. The last week is needed to obtain results and go through the appeals process, if necessary.

One solution to the Beta/proficiency conflict could be moving the exam to late Sunday afternoon.

Because the exam is stressful enough on its own, without sounds from and thoughts about another major event, some compromise must be made.

Of warcrimes and witch trials

Just Say Know

By Nancy Erikson

Corey: You'll burn for this, do you know it?

Cheever: You know for yourself I must do as I am told.

Proctor: I'll tell you what's walking Salem, Vengeance is walking Salem.

Mary Warren: You must see it sir, it's God's work we do.

The Crucible, Arthur Miller

Once there was this group of people, more a religious group of people than a nationality, but nonetheless, they were a very distinct sociological group of people. They were called the Geebrus.

And these Geebrus called themselves the Chosen People of the Creator and while they certainly may have been, this claim angered a lot of other people: Especially a man named Hister.

Hister was a weird little man, but as evil as he was, he was a genius and very charismatic. He had watched the Geebrus for many years and decided, unfairly, that he didn't like them. He also decided that he would destroy them, and he got a group of people who would help him out. He called them the Quazi Party and they did many terrible things. They gathered and slaughtered the Geebrus. They put them into concentration camps and tortured them fiercely.

And before anyone knew it, Hister and his Quazis had taken over the whole land.

Except for the land of the Bear, where the merciless Tralin reigned. Tralin was almost as bad as Hister. See, he and his pals had just taken over the land of the Bear and they had to kill off anyone that did not agree with Tralin's party, the Bomunism Party.

And Tralin was organizing something called the Purges. He tortured and murdered anyone that did not do what he wanted them to do.

As Tralin and his Bomunists moved toward the west, Hister and his Quazis moved to the east, until they came to a land called the Dukrain.

In this land there were many people that feared both Hister and Tralin and didn't quite know which one to follow. All they did know was that they had to choose sides and either help the Quazis kill the Geebrus or help the Bomunists kill their own people. For if they didn't help kill somebody, they would be killed and they didn't want that.

Well anyway, all this killing went on for about 5 or 6 years and about 6 million Geebrus were senselessly slaughtered. But as always, Good conquered Evil and soon Tralin and his Bomunists were confined to the land of the Bear and Hister and the Quazis were taken over.

Many of these Quazis were killed when Hister was. Many of them were imprisoned and executed later. Some of them switched sides. But some of them, it was rumored, ran away and changed their identities so that they would not be killed.

Anyway, as time passed, the Geebrus overcame the hardship that was laid upon them and once again the Chosen People were a powerful nation.

So powerful, in fact, that they began to hunt down old Quazis and try and execute them for something called Warcrimes, a convenient little phrase summing up everything that the Quazis did to the Geebrus.

And the Geebrus searched for these Quazis like Puritans looking for witches. They had trials much like the witch trials too: hearsay, emotional response and very little hard evidence.

Well, one day they found one of these old Quazis that was one of the men from the Dukrain, one of the men that had to choose between Tralin or Hister. Who would want to make that kind of choice?

This supposed Quazi's name was Ivan and he was dragged from his home and taken to the Geebrus homeland and shoved in a cell. The Geebrus grilled him about the great Holocaust and where he was and what he was doing. They accused him of committing horrible crimes.

But all the while, he claimed, "This is a case of mistaken identity. Tralin's old men are doing this to me."

The Geebrus did not care though. They did not believe him. They brought in documents and pictures of Ivan doing the terrible things. They brought in eye witnesses to testify that Ivan was a torturer during the holocaust and that he destroyed many Geebrus. Many people around the world believed this evidence but Ivan stuck with his claim.

"This is a case of mistaken identity. Tralin's old men are doing this to me."

The trial dragged on and still not one shred of hard evidence was brought before the court. People came in and out of the courtroom as they pleased. They laughed at Ivan and his remarks. They were going to hang him, whatever it took.

But his story remained the same, "This is a case of mistaken identity. Tralin's old men are doing this to me."

Finally, the judgment day came and the verdict was announced: "This court finds Ivan guilty of warcrimes and he will be executed."

The world cheered and the Geebrus gloated at the revenge they had taken in the name of their people and their Creator.

They said, "This man slaughtered thousands of the Chosen People. Now he will pay for it."

With that they took the old Dukrainian man to the guillotine and prepared the execution while the crowds cheered.

Ivan did not resist, he only whispered, "This is a case of mistaken identity. Tralin's old men are doing this to me."

Suddenly the blade was released and Ivan was dead and there was laughter and screaming and celebration.

And the Geebrus had gotten rid of another of the evil scum who hurt them 40 years ago. And now they could continue their hunt for more of them.

Letters

Rambo letter trashy, unfair to Taliaferro

To Rikk Rambo:

In response to your letter "expressing concern" for the BG News endorsement, (or shall I say, direct slam on Craig Taliaferro) I find your letter completely appalling and embarrassing as a fellow student. Not wanting the rest of the free world to associate your comments with the rest of the intelligent life here at Bowling Green State University, I felt compelled to give a fair opinion of the situation.

I am not trying to say that every student shares my opinion, but I do feel that we should all be fair in our criticisms. My first point of difference is in your "new definition of non-traditional student." "Ums and ski masks?" Come on. I feel that this was neither fair, nor constructive criticism. It was a slam.

On to the next foolish quote: "It was so kick-!# when he told University President Paul Ols-camp that if he didn't put up the Peace Pole, he'd soon be sleeping with the fishes." Oh please, another slam. The BG News said nothing about Mr. Taliaferro's past history of assaulting university presidents, so I'll assume that he has none, and so should you! (While we're on the subject, a side note to Dr. Ols-camp: Let them plant the pole.)

Not only were you terribly unfair to Mr. Taliaferro, you were also unfair to the BG News.

They were not typecasting liberals, conservatives OR non-traditional students. They were simply writing a story. (And in reply to your question about Paul Simon, I am surprised that you knew he wasn't the same guy who sings "Graceland.")

I may not agree with the way that Mr. Taliaferro "lied" to the student body, but I can't stand by and read any more trashy slams on him. I am surprised that the BG News chose to print your little bit of nasty humor. I am sure that there were other constructive, intelligent letters sent in that could have used the foot of column they gave to you. I am even sure that Mr. Taliaferro would not object to that type of criticism, but I am afraid that you have taken it too far.

No student should have to get up in the morning and read such trash about himself in the paper, especially not directly under his own editorial column! This is in extremely bad taste, not only on your part, Mr. Rambo, but also by the BG News. Let's all grow up here and analyze the situation rationally, and keep our personal slams to ourselves!

Article on Taliaferro sabotaged campaign

This letter is in response to the article printed on April 14 regarding Craig Taliaferro.

I must seriously question the integrity of a newspaper which allows such an article to be printed about only one of the candidates running for USG President on one of the election days. If you were to argue and I'm sure many people on this campus will, that the student body has a right to be informed about the candidates, I would agree. So, where are all the other articles on the other candidates? What? You only investigated Mr. Taliaferro's background? How interesting.

Personally, I found the whole article in very poor taste. It would seem to me that the BG News could be accused of deliberately sabotaging Mr. Taliaferro's campaign by printing such an outdated and totally irrelevant article on his past. It is unfortunate that a great number of unthinking and bigoted students will never realize that Mr. Taliaferro was not directly involved in anything illegal regarding the robberies. He simply was accused, by the actual robbers themselves, of having prior knowledge of a crime, and because of that he has paid his price. I wonder how many BGSU students have had prior knowledge of underage drinking, petty theft, or sexual assaults? Guess what folks, you're guilty too!

In addition, this article was for the most part a rehash of an article printed years ago. What right does this paper have to reintroduce material from an article printed a long time ago to degrade a person now?

In my opinion, Mr. Taliaferro has the courage it takes to do what he believes in. He is exactly what this campus needs to challenge it to really see the world for what it is and not to sugar-coat it with the sickly sweetness of complacency. The BG News has done both the student body and Mr. Taliaferro a grave disservice by printing that sensationalistic and trashy article.

Editor's note: A Sunday, April 24 issue of the Plain Dealer reported that according to police and FBI records, Taliaferro acted alone in the bank jobs and that he himself robbed at least three banks, although he was originally arrested in connection with four. Taliaferro responded that he stands by the explanation he gave the BG News.

Room needed for big rocks, wind chimes

I am writing this letter to show my undying support of our ever-wise president and his loyal supporter — Betsy Smith (letter, April 14).

They are examples of the few individuals on this campus who truly realize the danger of letting it be known that BGSU has students actually interested in such a controversial issue as peace on earth. Who do the Peaceniks think they are? They would soon clutter our campus with reminders of socially relevant issues. UGH!

Why, then we wouldn't have room for much more important monuments such as rocks painted with fraternity and sorority insignias and those brass wind chimes everybody loved so much last year.

They should just be ashamed of themselves for putting their trivial and irrelevant cause up against such sacred institutions! Stop thinking of yourself and being so selfish, Progressive Student Organization!

Don't blame problems on family member

Most parents have heard a statement similar to this at some time. If parents are honest and objective about the precipitating incidents which give rise to such statements, they often admit that one child is not solely at fault. Behavior is usually the result of interaction with others.

A break from this belief is often seen when a family considers the need for therapy; i.e., in situations such as substance abuse, threatened suicide, marriage problems, etc. Appointments are made and the "problem child" or "problem spouse" is delivered to the therapist's office with, "Here she/he is. Please fix her/him."

All of a sudden all of the "blame" for a family member's unacceptable behavior is placed on that one person's shoulders. She/he becomes the identified patient.

Family therapy addresses this issue very directly. (Many substance abuse centers have family weeks based on the recognition that family members become enablers, scapegoats, heroes, etc. Each of these members contributes in some way to the continuation of the dysfunction, and each must participate in the solution.) Many situations are made much more clear by at least beginning with an entire family meeting with the therapist. Seeing all family members together often enables the therapist to identify the source of the dysfunction much more quickly since all sides can be heard and behaviors can be observed.

One of the most important aspects of the family therapy approach is the willingness of everyone to take some responsibility and to work together on family problems rather than placing all the "blame" on one member. If your family is facing a difficult issue, perhaps a willingness to go together for counseling will make it easier to get something done.

BGSU officer to retire

Sgt. Starnes plans work with youth in hometown

by Jackie Jackson
copy editor

After 18 years on the force and only five weeks to retirement, Sgt. Charlotte R. Starnes continues to stress crime prevention.

Keep your doors locked and never walk alone, she said.

In addition to the importance of a full-time Crime Prevention coordinator on campus, she said student cooperation is essential.

"Be alert, be aware, and get involved," she said.

Hired on September 29, 1969, Starnes is currently coordinator of the Crime Prevention and Community Relations programs at Campus Safety and Security.

She does not boast about graduating in 1970 with honors from the Ross Enright Police Academy—the only female in a class of 34—nor of being the only female in 1972 to successfully complete Basic Police Training at the Highway Patrol Academy in Columbus.

Instead, she said, "The major problem on campus today is burglary. As a result of unlocked doors, theft and/or bodily harm occurs. Keep your doors locked."

While attending Owens Technical College, Starnes became interested in a career in the police force.

After being hired at the University, she said she stayed

"Be alert, be aware, and get involved."

for the challenge.

In 1979, she was promoted to Sergeant and Line Supervisor over all the men in the day shift.

In 1983, she accepted the position of coordinator of Crime Prevention and Community Relations. By 1985, she received a Special Merit Award from the International Association of Women Police for planning and implementing the crime prevention programs utilized at the University.

She has written a Student Handbook on Crime Prevention and she wrote and directed the video tape "Ripped Off" explaining measures of preventing crime.

After May 31, Starnes said she will return home to Rossford and work with youth in the area.

Although she will miss her job, she showed pride in the 18 years she has worked with Campus Safety and Security stating, "The University Campus Police program ranked third out of 20 national applicants. We have a wonderful program. It's just getting the students to implement it."

Nine serve on vice president search group

by Jared O. Wadley
staff reporter

A nine-member search committee to find a replacement for the vice president of operations was recently selected by University President Paul Olscamp.

Although he hopes to find a replacement by Sept. 1, Olscamp said he told the committee Tuesday it shouldn't concern itself with a deadline because he wants the "best person" selected.

"There is no huge rush. I'm interested in someone who has technical skills to run a physical plant and capital budgeting," Olscamp said.

The committee, which will find a replacement for Karl Vogt, who resigned his position to teach full-time in the College of Business Administration, consists of Mary Edmonds, vice president for student affairs; Robert Kreienkamp, television engineer for WBGU-TV and chair of Classified Staff; and Keith Pogan, associate director of plant operations and maintenance.

Also on the committee is Reginald Noble, chairman of biological sciences, Michael Sawyer, assistant director of plant operations and maintenance; Jill Carr, director of housing; William Norris, chief engineer of plant operations and maintenance; Brett DiSalle, undergraduate resident adviser; and Ed O'Donnell, assistant director of food operations.

Before Vogt was hired five years ago, Olscamp said he wanted someone with continuity, and who also knew the faculty and University to fill the position since Olscamp was beginning his post as University president.

If a replacement isn't selected before July 1, Vogt said he will continue serving as vice president.

"It is busy during the summer planning and preparing for the fall but it won't be a problem (to do both jobs)," Vogt said. "It will be a problem when school starts in the fall because I want to devote my attention to the academic aspect."

The search committee will submit the names of five unranked finalists to Olscamp, who said Vogt "will be working harder than he thinks he is" if a vice president isn't selected before school begins.

Pappas, who worked for CBS from 1964 to 1987, said the image a candidate projects has been a major factor in determining who becomes front-running contenders.

Since 1960 when John Kennedy projected himself as the "American Lancelot not to be denied," people have become more interested in the candidates' image than the substance behind their campaign, Pappas said.

"Just look at how Ronald Reagan behaved on television during the 1980 campaign. We all know he is no stranger to television," Pappas said. "But George Bush came off as a whiny kind of wimpy guy, an image he is still trying to fight." Bushkin, former press secretary for Gary Hart, said the strong support for Michael Dukakis shows the country is not looking for another charismatic leader this election year.

"This is not the year for charisma. Dukakis looks fresh, sincere and displays steady-ness," Bushkin said. "People see it as a change after the Reagan administration."

All three panelists agreed the two potential nominees, Dukakis and Bush, were "bland."

"Even though they appear bland, I hope they will get to the issues in the fall," Bushkin said.

The panel was sponsored by the political honor society Pi Sigma Alpha, along with over 30 other organizations and was moderated by WTVG anchor Diane Larson.

UAO making plans for fall

by Debbie Hipple
staff reporter

Thirteen committees within the University Activities Organization (UAO) are deciding what students should be anticipating for the upcoming school year. The activities will be presented during the upcoming school year, according to the organization's director.

Gale Swanka said that although not much is confirmed as of yet, the committees are brainstorming as to what will be presented next year.

How many activities are planned for the upcoming two semesters depends on two factors. First is whether the organization can book a place to hold the event in advance. In some cases the committee has to book the place a year ahead of time. For example, for the print sale they must reserve the Grand Ballroom a year before they need it, Swanka said.

Secondly, depending on the program, the committee is allotted a budget it must utilize carefully. The committee in charge of speakers on campus may only have three the entire year, while the films committee can order 24 movies per semester, according to Swanka.

Among the movies headlining UAO's program are hits such as "Broadcast News," "Moonstruck," "Fatal Attraction," "Three Men and a Cradle," and "Good Morning, Vietnam," she said.

Of the confirmed activities dates, UAO weekend movies will begin Sept. 8; the Fall Fest, Sept. 24; the annual jazz concert, sponsored by UAO and the College of Music, April 8; the Daytona Beach Trip, over Spring Break; and five to six mini-courses are planned.

In September, a plant sale, an organizational meeting for UAO, and a print sale are planned. According to Swanka, the organization is again sponsoring King and Queen elections, theme films every night the week before Homecoming, and either a "major concert" or an "Outdoor Blanket Concert" for Homecoming Weekend.

In addition, there will be a rose sale for Sweetest Day and a "Parent of the Year" Contest. Among the December events are a craft fair and a shopping trip to Fairlane Mall in Dearborn, Mich., for the holidays.

Frat pulls for PUSH

Pi Kappa Phi donates time, money to charity

by Pamela Monastra
staff reporter

Pi Kappa Phi has embarked on the largest fundraising effort in its history and one of the biggest fraternity philanthropies in the country.

Play Units for the Severely Handicapped (PUSH), is an annual philanthropic event represented by Pi Kappa Phi. The fraternity raises the money to purchase the units and donates them to local hospitals.

Jim Karlovec, PUSH chairman, said the units are used for sensory stimulation, for individuals that are both mentally and physically handicapped.

Aside from the first unit the fraternity supplied to the Decem Center, in Holland, Ohio, formerly the Anne Grady Center, for $22,000 from local and national donations, a second unit has been placed in the Sunshine Children's Home in Maumee.

"The child does something and gets something in return."

—Jim Karlovec, PUSH chairman

All the units are different and within each unit are different stations, designed to serve specific needs of the facility.

Some of the stations consist of a slide projector so the child can look at different pictures, a radio so the child can play with the knobs, a scent machine where a stream of air comes out containing a certain smell, and a vibrating pad which the child sits on in order to relax.

"The primary purpose of the dials on these machines is action/reaction. The child receives a response from the environment," Karlovec said. "The child does something and gets something in return," he said.

Karlovec said the Pi Kappas recently received a donation from one of their biggest supporters.

"Prudential Bache, a big supporter of PUSH, donated $2,000 to the fundraiser," Karlovec said. "We also obtained $2,100 from the toll road we had set up," he said.

He said he'll be working through the summer raising more money for PUSH.

The new PUSH project, on the national level, is "PUSH America '88."

"PUSH America '88 will consist of 25 individuals from approximately 15 Pi Kappa Phi chapters," Karlovec said. "On June 13th, 20 of the 25 individuals will ride bikes from San Diego, California to Washington D.C., while the other five will act as support members," he said.

Women expect lower pay, research shows

by Jeff Batdorf

According to a three-year study conducted by Miami University research professors, women expect to be paid about $2,000 a year less than men in a wide variety of job markets.

Marjorie Nadler, communications assistant professor and one of the Miami University professors who conducted the research, said in a telephone interview that men seem to have higher expectations than women for starting-job salaries and salary raises in five years.

The research study involved two separate parts involving Miami students in different job situations, Nadler said.

The first portion involved 160 upperclassmen in different liberal arts and business majors. The group was 40 percent male and 60 percent female.

They filled out a questionnaire that asked what they thought a reasonable salary would be in the fields they were going into and what they thought their supervisors would consider reasonable, Nadler said. According to Nadler, the second part involved a different group of 160 students who were told they were required by their supervisors to meet and review their annual performance reports and discuss salary increases.

The students were aired in different categories: male-female, male-male or female-female. One person played the supervisor and the other played the subordinate.

The studies showed female workers received lower salaries than males and received the lowest pay increases under female supervisors. Nadler said this is due to the queen-bee syndrome. She said this syndrome is caused by female supervisors who feel they went through a lot to get their position and their subordinates should go through the same amount of trouble, by getting low salary increases.

The studies also showed that not only do females get lower salaries than males, roughly 70 cents on the dollar, they also seemed satisfied with what they get.

Nadler said this is because of socialization factors, stereotypes and different experiences women have before they enter the job market. She said women have been taught to not be aggressive and that affects the amount of money they get in their salaries.

"Women act the way society expects women to act," Nadler said. She went on to say women also don't realize they could be getting more money if they acted more aggressively.

The studies were conducted to learn why women received less money than men. Nadler said, in addition to socialization factors, other factors could have an impact on women's salaries, such as discrimination or job interaction between the supervisors and their subordinates, but she said this study did not focus on these other factors.

Health care stays

Summer center hours, staff decreased

by Beth Church
staff reporter

Students attending the University this summer can still receive medical attention at the Student Health Center, according to its director, Dr. Joshua Kaplan.

The Health Center opens May 16, observing summer University hours, which are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday to Thursday, and 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Friday.

Neither physical therapy services nor the Wellness Center will be open, however, he said. "Physical therapy is even slow during the school year — there really is no need for it in the summer," Kaplan said.

He also said the pharmacy service will not be open during the mornings of Monday to Thursday.

Students who are registered for summer or fall courses are eligible to use the Health Center, he said. If students are not taking summer classes they must pay a $20 fee for their first visit. "This is the same amount a student's general fee would pay, if he were registered at the time," Kaplan said.

Because of the fewer people seen during the summer, Kaplan said the staff is cut down to less than half. He said only two nurse clinicians and two physicians will be on duty.

"This is exactly enough. We can keep up quite handily," he said.

Kaplan also said students who are covered by the Health Center insurance plan should be aware it expires Aug. 18.

"Every year we have someone come in during November not realizing their insurance expired months ago," Kaplan said.

About 500 students are covered by the plan, according to Kaplan. All University students will receive an application to apply for the insurance this summer, he said, but they can be obtained earlier by contacting the Colonial Life Insurance Company, which provides the University plan.

Information will also be available this summer at the Health Center, he said.

Treaty signed

Saudi Arabia approves missile reduction pact

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — King Fahd of Saudi Arabia yesterday decided to sign an agreement to limit intermediate-range missiles. Sources say that the treaty is in response to Israeli fears that the kingdom might arm its missiles with nuclear warheads.

Information Minister Ali al-Shaer said the decision was made during a Cabinet meeting in the Saudi capital of Riyadh where other issues also were discussed, the official Saudi Press Agency reported.

It appeared the announcement was designed primarily to reassure the United States that Saudi Arabia will not try to put nuclear warheads on CSS-2 intermediate-range missiles the kingdom acquired from China.

King Fahd wrote President Reagan recently, reportedly assuring him that the warheads on the surface-to-surface missiles are not nuclear.

Israel has alleged that the missiles constitute a threat to its safety and indicated it might deal a preemptive strike to destroy them.

The news agency, monitored in Bahrain, said Prince Saud Faisal, the Saudi foreign minister, recommended that the kingdom join the International Nuclear Weapons Non-proliferation Treaty.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest exporter of crude oil, was reported to have obtained from Beijing an undisclosed number of CSS-2 missiles capable of reaching virtually any point in the Middle East, including Israel.

Western diplomatic sources have said that China, which arms its own CSS-2s with atomic warheads, has told Washington it will not export nuclear arms.

The sources said the Saudis refused a request by the United States to inspect the missiles, which they said were deployed in the Rub al-Khali desert south of Riyadh.

Korean vote prompts riots

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Riot Police yesterday fired tear gas to break up a demonstration against alleged vote fraud as South Koreans cast ballots for a new parliament in an election the governing party was expected to win.

The opposition, which failed to unify before the election, charged the government was manipulating vote-counting computers after a local television station reported a governing party candidate had won with 39 percent of the vote. The station said it accidentally broadcast an election rehearsal.

In Seoul, police fired tear gas to disperse 50 students who threw rocks and firebombs to protest the alleged manipulation of the election in favor of the governing Democratic Justice Party of President Roh Tae-woo.

Scattered anti-government protests also occurred elsewhere yesterday before voting began at 7 a.m. at 13,812 polling stations nationwide. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

The polls were to close at 6 p.m. (5 a.m. EDT) and most results were expected by early today.

Teen electrocuted

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A teen-ager walking barefoot along a busy street was electrocuted when she stepped on a steel plate that covered wiring for a light post, authorities said.

Sunday morning's accident that killed 17-year-old Veronika Beatriz Faria "was just a death waiting to happen," said Ott Cefkin, a Fort Lauderdale police spokesman.

The street and wiring had been moved to make way for the entrance of a new shopping center. It was badly rewired and set the grating alive with 480 volts, said police and a Florida Power and Light spokesman.

Had the victim been wearing shoes, she probably would have been insulated from the current, said FPL spokesman Don Ostberg. Cefkin said city workers investigating the accident told police a poorly insulated wire had been improperly positioned on the lip of the box beneath the steel plate. When the lid was placed on the box, the insulation was severed.

"It turned that cover into a hot plate," Cefkin said.

Ostberg said he'd never heard of that happening.

Cefkin said it was unclear who was responsible for the wiring, but the investigation was continuing.

Commencement

She wants the committee to investigate the possibility of students receiving their actual diploma at commencement in future years instead of receiving it in the mail several weeks later.

"If other schools do it, why don't we? It would be more meaningful," she said.

"I believe in students. I want to offer (the parents) the chance to be proud of their children being part of this institution," she said.

One alternative the committee might recommend for future years, she said, is to end finals week on Thursday and have a University-sponsored party on Friday. That way students would have a chance to celebrate one day and have formal commencement the next day.

The committee will distribute a questionnaire to students in the fall to get more student input into how graduation should be structured. Questions deal with issues like how long the ceremony should last, what the students' preference of speakers is, and whether there should be separate ceremonies for each college.

"We need student input to get the best recommendations. We want a sense of what all students want," Radeloff said. "We couldn't make a lot of changes this year."

However, she emphasized that the committee will continue its work in the fall to improve future commencements.

Burlingame said the goals of the committee's recommendations is to reach "a happy medium." He said all changes are being made on an experimental basis in response to the recommendations given to him.

"We've come to a reasonable compromise," he said.

Blacks' kidney genes may influence health

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black people may have a gene that gives their kidneys the unique ability to function well on very limited amounts of salt, but which also can cause high blood pressure and disease when too much salt is consumed, a researcher suggested Tuesday.

Dr. Robert Luke of the University of Cincinnati Medical Center said the existence of this unique kidney gene is suggested by the mixed results of efforts to prevent disease by controlling high blood pressure among black people.

Speaking at a National Kidney Foundation seminar, Luke said controlling high blood pressure, or hypertension, has resulted in a reduction in stroke and heart disease.

But it has not caused a reduction in the rate of a kidney disease caused by hypertension. And striking differences between the races suggest there may be a genetic-based difference in the cause of high blood pressure.

"All kidney disease is more common among blacks than whites," said Luke, the chairman of the department of internal medicine at the University of Cincinnati. "End-stage renal disease (terminal kidney failure) is three times more common in blacks than in whites."

He said that at a Birmingham, Ala. transplant center, which performs about half its transplants on black patients, there have been many instances where kidneys transplanted from a white donor to a black patient with high blood pressure has resulted in the recipient becoming "normotensive," or achieving a normal blood pressure.

"This suggests that the cause of the original high blood pressure was the patient's own kidneys," he said.

Studies also have shown, he said, that black people tend to retain more salt, excreting less of the mineral in their urine than white people.

All of this suggests, said Luke, "that a hereditary kidney abnormality may actually cause high blood pressure."

He said there is speculation that this kidney characteristic developed through evolution in central Africa where salt is naturally very limited. In that environment, the kidney characteristic represented a "Darwinian advantage" for people who lived there, he said.

That advantage, however, becomes a disadvantage and eventually leads to disease if there is an overabundance of salt in the diet, said Luke.

Lawyer to donate reward to Argentinian prisoners

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A lawyer awarded $21 million for four years of confinement and torture in Argentine prisons during the military regime says he'll donate half the money to other victims of human abuses there.

U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti on Monday ordered former Argentine Gen. Carlos Suarez Mason, who supervised the prisons, to pay the money, described by plaintiff lawyers as a record for human rights abuse cases settled in the United States.

On Wednesday, another federal judge is scheduled to decide whether Suarez Mason should be extradited to Argentina on charges of 43 murders and 24 kidnappings allegedly committed by soldiers under his command.

"It's a tremendous victory both for human rights and for the people of Argentina, the victims and the families of the disappeared, to whom a great portion of this award will be donated," David Cole, an attorney for the New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights, said of Monday's ruling.

Cole's client, Horacio Martinez-Baca, a labor union lawyer and former government official in Mendoza, Argentina, said he was arrested in March 1976, six days after a military coup; held for four years and tortured repeatedly in military prisons overseen by Suarez Mason.

"They laid me down on a table," Martinez-Baca, who now lives in Oakland, testified last month. "They tied my arms and legs. They put electric shocks on my genitals and my gums, and they asked who were my friends."

Blaze kills two

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 7-year-old boy ran back into a burning building to try and rescue his 70-year-old grandfather, but both died early Tuesday in a two-alarm fire which gutted an apartment.

Firefighters said Brian Gregory, who lived on the first floor, escaped after the fire broke out shortly after midnight, but re-entered the building in a search for his grandfather, Robert Wilson, who was on the second floor. Firefighters found both bodies on the second floor.

Smoke inhalation apparently killed the victims, firefighters said.

The youngster was taken to Children's Hospital Medical Center and died there at 1:44 a.m., officials said. Wilson was pronounced dead at the scene of the blaze in the inner-city Over-the-Rhine neighborhood.

A neighbor, Rose Theiss, said she looked out of her window on the second floor of a building across the street and saw flames coming out of the second-floor windows of the burning building.

"I looked over there and there were flames flying through from one end to the other. Oh, it was just awful," said Theiss, 73.

"By the time I looked out, the windows were already busted out and the flames was sweeping from back to the front on the second floor. I was shocked. I just couldn't believe it," she said. "It was like somebody would just take gasoline and throw a match to it and it just go up in flames."

There were 13 other people who escaped from the building, including two women who were injured when they jumped from a second-floor window and a 3-year-old girl who was tossed from the second floor and caught by a passerby.

Fruits tainted in Italy

ROME (AP) — Health authorities yesterday ordered the seizure of all grapefruits in Italy after tests showed that several grapefruits in a Rome supermarket had been laced with poison.

Italian news media said the poisoned grapefruits apparently had been imported from Israel, although officials did not immediately say where they were grown.

Last week, an organization saying it was supporting the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories claimed it had poisoned Israeli grapefruit on sale in Milan. Laboratory checks at the time found no trace of poison.

But authorities in the region of Lazio, which includes the city of Rome, said health officials later inspected grapefruits in one Rome supermarket after a newspaper received a threatening telephone call.

Of the 12 grapefruits on sale, six were found to have been injected with a bluish poison so powerful that it immediately killed laboratory mice, the Italian news agency ANSA said.

The caller said he was speaking in the name of the previously unheard of "Organization of Metropolitan Proletarians and Oppressed People."

The first seizure order was made by health authorities in Lazio. It was quickly followed by a national health ministry order for the seizure of all grapefruits on sale or in warehouses around the country.

In Turin, the northern region of Piedmont issued a separate announcement that ordered all Israeli-grown grapefruits seized. It appealed to residents to destroy any grapefruits they had at home.

Looking Ahead

BG News/Mark Thalman

BG head coach Ed Platzer and his squad play the Big 10's Ohio State Buckeyes today at Warren E. Steller Field. The Falcons, 18-18-1, have won six of their last nine contests.

Bruning leads BG to title

Rich Bruning fired a par 70 at the Toledo Country Club Monday to lead Bowling Green to a decisive victory in the 13th annual Barney Francis Memorial Tournament in Toledo.

The Falcons totaled 373 strokes for the 18-hole event, 13 strokes better than runner-up Youngstown State (386). Toledo was third at 388, followed by Tiffin University (431), Ohio Northern (433), and Ashland (453).

Finishing behind Bruning, who was tournament medalist, for BG were Eric Stacy with a four-over-par 74, Dan Connor (76), Tim Goeller (76), and Rob Barsantee (77).

The Falcons were busy over the weekend as well, placing eighth out of 13 squads at the Spartan Invitational at Michigan State University in a 54-hole tournament.

BG shot a 935 to finish well behind champion Illinois (891).

Pat Bryan tied for 12th out of 54 players with a 230. Barsantee carded a 231 to tie for 16th. Barsantee's opening-round 74 was a tournament best for a single round.

Other Falcons who participated were Stacy (238), Connor (240) and Bruning (234).

BG will compete in the Mid-American Conference Invitational Golf Tournament at Windmill Lakes County Club in Ravenna, Friday and Saturday.

The men's tennis squad has been close to posting wins all season. They were very close again this past weekend but were unable to get the "W."

The Falcons lost to Eastern Michigan and Western Michigan by scores of 5-4 on each occasion. BG is now 6-14 overall, 0-5 in the Mid-American Conference.

In singles play, No. 1 Andy Saltee and No. 2 Ken Bruce both went 1-1. No. 5 Mike Hain, playing singles in the conference for the first time, won both of his matches.

In doubles, Steve Mudre and Doug Dickinson won both of their matches at the No. 3 position. Bruce and Peter Ellsworth went 1-1 at No. 1, with the victory coming against Western Michigan.

The Falcons host Ohio University Saturday at 10 a.m. at Keefe Courts.

The women's tennis squad dropped two Mid-American Conference matches this past weekend to fall to 9-9 overall, 1-4 in the conference.

The Falcons dropped a 7-2 decision to Western Michigan, Friday, and an 8-1 verdict to Eastern Michigan, Saturday.

Against the Hurons, No. 2 singles player Nanette Zimmerman was the Falcons only winner, 6-1, 6-3.

No. 6 singles player Kelly King won against the Broncos, 2-6, 7-6, 7-5, while No. 3 doubles team Andraea Dalmas and Paula Pocock registered a 6-3, 6-2 triumph.

The Falcons travel to Ohio University Saturday for their final tune-up for the MAC tourney.

The MAC Championships are May 5-7 at Miami University in Oxford.

The women's track squad turned in some of its best performances of the season at the Kentucky Relays this past weekend.

Allison Brewton posted seasonal-best times in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles (1:05.90) and high jump (5-8). She was first in the overall competition.

Pam Dillon made her best long jump (17-8), while Kerry Bostelman recorded the team's best triple jump (34-4).

The 4 X 100 relay team of Melissa Cole, Allyson Williams, Janice Hare and Kathy DiFranco clocked a season-best time of 48.71 seconds.

While not every Falcon turned in a season-best performance, some placed in the meet.

Beth Manson finished second in the disc (162-9) and shot put (44-11), while Cole took third in the 200 meters (25.62 seconds).

The 4 X 800 relay team took third as well. Running the legs were Andrea Rombes, Laura Schultes, Missie Betz and Missy Eilers.

The Falcons travel to three meets this weekend, including the Penn Relays in Philadelphia.

Harper injured at season's end

Cavs' guard could miss first playoff game against Bulls

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Cavalier guard Ron Harper probably will miss the NBA team's opening playoff game in Chicago against the Bulls on Thursday night, Coach Lennie Wilkens said Tuesday.

The 6-foot-6 Harper sprained his right ankle late in the first half of Cleveland's 107-103 victory at Chicago last Friday night. The Cavaliers are hopeful that Harper will be ready to play Sunday at Chicago, when the teams meet in the second of the best-of-five series.

Craig Ehlo, a 6-foot-7 forward-guard, will replace Harper in the starting lineup if Harper can't play, Wilkens said.

"It doesn't seem possible that Ron will be able to play in the first game, but we'll keep evaluating the situation on a day-to-day basis," Wilkens said. "He's having treatments and his ankle is still sore, but he's walking around more. We'll play it by ear."

Cleveland went 11-13 when Harper missed 24 games early in the season with a severely sprained left ankle and a chipped bone in his left foot.

As a rookie last season, Harper averaged 22.9 points. He struggled when he returned from his injury but then played his best basketball of the season as the Cavaliers finished with 11 victories in their last 13 games. Harper raised his final scoring average to 15.4 points and added 4.9 assists and 2.14 steals per game.

"I feel that this is where the versatility and depth that we've tried to create will come into play," Wilkens said.

Harper would be assigned to cover the NBA's leading scorer, Michael Jordan, who averaged 35 points this season. Ehlo will draw that assignment if Harper doesn't play.

"Craig's played very well for us. He has size, and he flows well with us. Craig plays good positional defense. Our concept is team defense. If Craig plays the way he should, we can help him defensively. No one individual stops Michael Jordan, but we'll try to do our best as a team to contain him," Wilkens said.

Ehlo averaged 7.1 points, 3.5 rebounds and 2.6 assists in 21.6 minutes per game this season.

Wilkens is optimistic about his young club despite Harper's questionable status.

Icers to play in Alaska

The Bowling Green hockey squad will play Alaska-Anchorage next season, the University announced Tuesday.

The Falcons will face-off with the Seawolves Oct. 14-15 in Alaska. The Icers trip will mark the first time a BG sports team has played in Alaska.

UAA was 15-15-3 last year and finished second in the Great West Hockey Conference.

The games will count in the win-loss column, but because the contests will be played outside the continental United States, the games will not count toward the maximum number of 35 contests the NCAA allows during the regular season.

The BG baseball squad has signed a catcher-third baseman to a national letter of intent, the University announced Tuesday.

Robert Kennedy of Maple Heights will play for the Falcons next year.

Kennedy, 6-1, 175, was All-League at Chanel High School his junior season when he hit .493.

"Robert is a solid two-way player and an excellent athlete," Falcon head coach Ed Platzer said. "He's a lefthanded power hitter who should help replace some of our senior power hitters."

Kennedy also lettered in football and basketball.

NBA players sign contract

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA and its players association reached a six-year agreement Tuesday that will grant some players unrestricted free agency, continue the salary cap system and reduce the college draft to two rounds after this year.

Before next season, a seven-year NBA veteran whose contracts has expired will have complete freedom to sign with any team, and his original team will no longer have the right to match an offer and keep him, as it does under the current right-of-first-refusal system.

Among the veterans benefiting immediately from this provision will be Moses Malone of Washington, Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee and Tom Chambers of Seattle.

The union had asked for unrestricted free agency and the abolition of the salary cap and the college draft, but compromise was the order for both sides.

"This is the first time in professional basketball that a player will be able to play with any team he chooses," said Larry Fleisher, executive director of the players association.

"Both sides made compromises from their original positions in order to reach agreement," NBA Commissioner David Stern said.

After the 1988-89 season, the free-agency provision will apply to five-year veterans, and in the last year of the agreement, 1993-94, a four-year veteran will have unrestricted free agency provided he is not in his first NBA contract.

In order to retain the right-of-first refusal for players who do not have enough years of service or who have just completed their first contract, a team must offer a player a new contract that is worth 125 percent of his previous yearly salary. Teams also are not allowed to match an offer and then trade a player.

In addition, right-of-first-refusal applies only to players who are offered $250,000 or more by their old team.

The agreement, which is subject to court approval, was reached after a seven-hour negotiating session Monday and was approved by the league's owners and the executive board of the players union, which also will drop its antitrust lawsuit against the league.

The agreement provides for a reduction in the June 28 college draft from seven to three rounds. Subsequent drafts will be two rounds, making free agents of all but 54 college players each season.

NFL's top draft choices could be hard to sign

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals management doesn't think NFL teams will have an easier time this year in signing top draft picks.

The Bengals have had trouble signing their last four No. 1 choices. Bengals assistant general manager Mike Brown doesn't think teams in general will be willing to pay the same first-round salaries this year.

"With the difficulties in the NFL as a whole last year, maybe clubs will cut back some," Brown said. "If they do, it won't be a dramatic difference, but it will be more than just putting the brakes on."

It'll be an effort to make things a little more realistic."

The Bengals took Oklahoma defensive back Rickey Dixon in the first round Sunday with the fifth pick overall in the draft. Dixon said he hopes to sign in time to attend the first day of training camp.

That would break a string of late Cincinnati signings. The Bengals' last four No. 1 picks — linebacker Ricky Hunley, receiver Eddie Brown, linebacker Joe Kelly and defensive end Jason Buck — missed the opening of training camp because of contract disputes. Hunley never signed with the Bengals and eventually went to Denver.

Davis ends slump in 5-2 win

MONTREAL (AP) — Nick Esasky and Eric Davis hit solo homers to help Ron Robinson win his first game of the season as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Montreal Expos 5-2 Tuesday night.

Robinson, 1-2, worked 5 1-3 innings, allowing three hits and one unearned run. Jose Rijo went 1 2-3 innings. John Franco finished for his third save.

At Cleveland, Joe Carter continued his torrid hitting with two homers and five RBI and Jay Bell and Brook Jacoby each drove in three runs as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Seattle Mariners 12-6.

Carter has hit five of his seven home runs in the last four games and is 11-for-17 with 15 runs batted in and nine runs scored in that span. He also hit two home runs Saturday night in a 10-2 victory over Minnesota.

Willie Upshaw had two of Cleveland's 14 hits, giving him 1,000 in his major-league career.

"With Darrell, we should be a much more accomplished fast break team."

While at Dunbar, McLane played on the No. 1 team in the country according to USA TODAY, under Joe Dean Davidson. That squad finished 25-3.

McLane is the fourth recruit to sign. He joins current high school seniors, 6-5 forward Tom Hall, 6-0 guard Kirk Whitman, and 6-6 forward Jay Zulauf.

McLane

1986-87 season, he averaged 16 points and 10 assists a game. His 332 total assists set a school record.

He has attended Allen County JC in Kansas this season, but did not play for unspecified reasons. McLane is now finishing up his JC class work at Montgomery County JC in Maryland.

Falcon head coach Jim Larranaga said he is excited that McLane, who will be eligible for two seasons of play here, is coming to BG.

"Darrell is an exceptionally quick guard with outstanding passing skills," Larranaga said. "He has demonstrated the ability to quarterback a team and play in an uptempo style."

Spoo, I mean Spuds, I mean Judd, and Bronze God, I mean Ricky, I mean Brent and Passout Two, I mean Bando, Hey Date---

What a night-or should we say 3?!! Wow, 2 whole nights of Mark's withdrawal, but it was worth the great half hour at the date party! Bando, where'd all the Seagrams go-couldn't have been Brent's date, she had the "good stuff". Spuds, you did the limbo so wee-wee you an aerobics instructor? Hey Bando, did you get lost looking for the Seagrams in your bed-YOU almost beat "Passout"! Brent, got a cigarette? Bando needs one! Spuds, sorry, I didn't mean to sleep in "her" room!! What fun dates leighed by 8-and we even got to meet Brent's "dude" except "Passout" missed it, must have been resting-AGAIN!! Ricky, glad your parents could make it-Bando, I'll swap you your wallet for my I.D.-Thank you guys!! It was great-you guys are the coolest! Love, your batty dates--"Passout", Drunk Psycho, and Lisa-Lisa.
P.S. While we were writing this, guess who passed out?!!
